The manager of the electric light department was instructed to place two lights each on Lomita avenue, Brand boulevard and Glendale avenue, at once.

THE CITY LIGHTING WORK.

Mr. Harry Lynch, manager of the Electric Lighting department, is about the busiest man in Glendale these days. There are an infinite number of odds and ends to be picked up in dove-tailing the old and the new systems together and many details to be looked after. It has been necessary for him to make many trips to San Pedro and Los Angeles with an occasional dash to other nearby towns where they have learned some things by experience. Two carloads of poles have arrived and are at the Salt Lake Company's yard on Glendale avenue. There are sixty-two poles on a car and there may be as many as ten carloads required before the work contemplated is completed. A yard man has been engaged to take charge of the work at the yard, where much is to be done. The poles will be shaved, gains cut and holes bored in them to accommodate cross-arms and pins. Other material is arriving by both roads all the time. The work of making new connections will begin at once and be pushed as rapidly as possible, but new work cannot be started as quickly as everybody desires. The connections on existing lines will be made first, so as to accommodate as many patrons as possible in the shortest time possible. The ordinance fixing rates and making other rules and regulations appears elsewhere.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Editor GLENDALE NEWS:

In your last issue you speak of William Murphy's severe arraignment of the anarchist who spoke on the streets of Los Angeles. If I mistake not, you said he gave them some wholesome truths straight from the shoulder. From a later speech reported by the Times, it would seem that Murphy also got some new ideas from the so-called anarchists and learned some truths that are not so wholesome. I quote from Monday's Times, Murphy said of his street meeting, "The conditions I met show that there is something wrong. The future of the state depends upon its ability to furnish employment for its citizens; to supply them with the comforts and necessities of life and to protect each class from being robbed of the blessings which God intended them to have. The unemployed congregate in the sections of the city where they can get something by which they can eke out an existence; a glass of beer and a sandwitch for a nickle. They gather together and discuss their circumstances. I met college-bred men down there who said: 'We cannot get work, no matter where we turn, or how we try,' and all this when our country is passing through an era of prosperity greater than any in its history."

You will note from the above that Mr. Murphy has had his eyes opened enough to see that there are classes, and that there is something radically wrong in the social and economic conditions other than the drink evil. But he completely falls down when he suggests a remedy. Heretofore our temperance speakers have advocated but one remedy for all evils, namely, to prohibit the drink. Mr. Murphy now realizes that prohibition is not a remedy for the problem of the unemployed, but says the surplus population of our cities must go back to the land. This is like telling the poor to be clothed and fed and not providing the wherewithal to feed and clothe them. Pray tell us how a destitute family in a city is to go to farming. In the first place it is impossible for them to own any land, then they have no teams nor implements, and if they rent the land and implements they have to give up everything to the landlord but a mere existence. But when a socialist states these same truths that Mr. Murphy gives, and suggests the real and only remedy, you call him an anarchist. If Mr. Murphy, instead of simply advocating temperance and pledge signing would attack the profit system as the fundamental cause of poverty, crime, and intemperance, instead of being lauded he would be branded as an anarchist and a dangerous man.

The writer, like many other Socialists, left the Prohibition party because he saw the necessity of striking at the cause instead of doctoring the effects. The drink curse like the white slave traffic and child slavery is rooted in the profit system. When we establish brotherhood and co-operation it will be easy to do right and hard to do wrong, where now we make it easy to do wrong and hard to do right.

One day a few weeks ago he gave an order to one of the Mexicans composing the gang which angered the native, who some time afterwards stood on a bank above Mr. Warren and threw stones at him, one of which hit him on the head, felling him senseless to the ground. After spending a few days in a Mexican hospital, Mr. Warren came to a Tucson hospital for treatment and later to Los Angeles to his relatives. The injury to his head is serious, as the skull was fractured, and the hearing is affected, but Mr. Warren hopes that by keeping quiet for a time he may recover.

THE HIGH SCHOOLS.

What Ex-Gov. Hoard Thinks They Should Be.

We do not often find it possible to give up our space to articles as long as the following taken from other papers, but there is in these words of ex-Gov. Hoard so much that is applicable to high schools everywhere that we cheerfully yield to the request of our friend Edgar Leavitt, Esq., to republish it and shall be glad to receive for publication comments upon the article by any of our people:

Should Not Be Recruiting Station for University.

[From the Milwaukee Free Press]

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 1.—Former Gov. W. D. Hoard, in an address at the annual meeting of city representatives of schols today, said that the high school of Wisconsin was the most important school in the state today, "a thousand times greater than the university in its effect upon the public welfare. It is a thousand times greater than any other educational institution. It ought to be the most perfect piece of work, educationally considered, that the state affords."

Sacrificing Its Usefulness.

The present high school, he said, tries to teach too much, and it was too much of a recruiting station for the university. "It has no business to be such an institution," said Mr. Hoard. "It is supported by local taxation for local purposes, for local enlightenment. It has no business today to be in relation with the University of Wisconsin, in my private opinion. Therefore the curriculum of the high school is based upon the necessities of the university to an extent, in my opinion, that is subversive of the best interests of the great majority of the pupils in the high schools. I do not like the situation.

"I am a regent of the university. I believe that we are sacrificing a large amount of usefulness in the future to a theory, a theory that our system of education shall be a unit with the university at the head.

"If that be true, where is the country district school today? The poorest school in the state of Wisconsin, the most wonderful school, the most important school, and good for nothing today, practically. Now then, we have been consumed too much with an idea of the head and not enough of the feet, for the head cannot say to the feet, "I have no need of thee."

Don't Get Enough Arithmetic.

"I am confronted with the fact that a large number of young men turned out at our high schools are loaded down with something that they do not understand—loaded down. I am confronted with the fact, and I thought of it when Prof. O'Shea was talking, with regard to mathematics. I am confronted in a practical business way by the fact that young men have been put upon algebra when they knew scarcely anything about arithmetic. Now, this is putting the cart before the horse. Things are not in their right relation. I believe that arithmetic should be taught in the high school to the last day of the pupil's life, and taught practically, taught intensely. I am not so certain about the proposition of algebra, or what is so-called higher mathematics, but when you bring me a pupil graduated at my high school that cannot cast up accounts or calculate a creamery dividend in percentage, I am asking myself the question, 'O, algebra, what are you good for?' and the pupil telling me that he did not understand percentage, that he went through and did not understand it."

The teachers, he said, were not to blame. The state had been carried away with the idea of standing accredited to the university. It interferes with the people's college.

Thoroughness of the Scots.

"Now I find," he added, "that the after-education of the young man after he has left the high school, the after-education, is more important than any he has ever had. Should that be so? I would like you to fit young men so that they can become competent disposers of their fortunes and particularly of public trust, particularly of the trust of other people.

"I said to the countess of Aberdeen one time while engaged in a month's tour with her and her husband, the Count of Aberdeen, in the three eastern provinces of Canada, that I was at once struck with the Scottish people, with the wonderful marvellous ability of the Scottish people to fill places of trust and confidence, and I said to her that I noticed that every factor in the employ of the Hudson Bay Company is a Scotchman, and then, when I go South into the West Indies and the great sugar estates, at the head of every one is a Scotchman and at the head of nearly all the fiduciary and financial institutions of England is a Scotchman, and the burser on the Cunard steamship line is a Scotchman.

"What under the sun is there about a Scotchman that should make him so wonderfully trusted? She listened to me for a moment and said, "There are two things that would; first, a severe family training. There is no man on earth so severely trained as a Scotchman, and particularly by his mother. Second, she said, his education is intensely practical. The great majority of Scotchmen are educated intensely in a practical line, a constructive line, a line that a man can take and make use of, and there is but little wasted intellect in Scotland, or anything else.' 'But,' I said, 'Why Scotland and not all other countries as well?' 'I don't know.' It was the remark of a very thoughtful and observing woman, a woman of intellect commensurate with her stature, which is about six feet."

RAILROAD RUMORS RUN DOWN

The Very Latest Reliable Information as to the Salt Lake Company

If we want to keep up with our contemporaries and the man on the street, we shall have to establish a Railroad Department. Rumors of most encouraging character have been floating around during the past week and they have been so circumstantial and persistent that we have given them more attention than usual with the following result. Gasoline motor cars are not going to be put on the Salt Lake road at once. We do not believe that they will ever be put on the Glendale branch until some extension or important change is made in the route of the road.

There is no immediate prospect of the extension of the line to La Canada either from this side or from Pasadena. The railroad company has made no proposition to extend it, but may be considered in a receptive mood as far as propositions are concerned. The La Canada people are endeavoring with fair success so far to get a $10,000 bonus pledged; when that amount is secured they hope to be able to make an offer to the company that will be acceptable. The Salt Lake company has not agreed to extend their line anywhere; but a proposition has been made to them sufficiently well backed and definite, for an extension of the line for a distance of about two miles from the present terminus above Glendale, northward to a point immediately below Crescenta. This proposition is being considered by the railroad officials and its acceptance is probably contingent upon the report made by their engineer as to cost of construction.

FATHER O'NEIL ON SOME PHASES OF MODERN THOUGHT.

Editor GLENDALE NEWS,

Dear Sir: The recent stir in Christian Science circles reminds me of an experience while stationed as curate on the East Side of Los Angeles at the Sacred Heart church. I used to visit daily the county hospital and walking through the insane ward one day was thus accosted by a patient:

"Father, I am not crazy; I only say everything that comes into my head. Now, if you were to say everything that comes into your head, people would call you crazy, too."

There is much true philosophy in the remark of this paranoiac; and measured by his standard of insanity, what a multitude of mild lunatics we find in the social and literary circles at the present time! Has the reader ever spent an hour in the company of half a dozen Christian Scientists and listened to the theories they enunciate and the phrases they use? Here is a venerable high-brow who speaks of the "periphrastic scintillations of the psychic force," there is an old dowager discussing the "neurotic power of self immanence;" and, alas! here is a handsome, blue-eyed girl telling how she loves "the Madonna" but thinks that Mrs. Eddy is superior to her in "hypnotic evolution." Much worse than this may be heard in any gathering of Eddyites, and indeed their Bible is manifestly the result of paranoia.

Take up some old books and theories and you will find similar evidences of insanity. Who has ever understood Spinosa's books or Berkeley's theories or the modern German so-called philosophers? Read them you may if you have great patience and much leisure; but understand them you cannot, for the writers are mildly insane. Under the blond curls of the young dame, or in the center of the high-brows' corrugated forehead, if you look closely you will see the crack. It is not very wide but it is there.

Take again the modern novel, or the articles on ethical religion or social questions which appear in our popular magazines or newspapers. An educated man, that is, one who has a logical mind and Christian principles, for nobody else is, properly speaking, an educated man, takes up these novels or these articles and throws them away one after the other; and as he flings them into the waste basket you may hear him say: "rubbish," "nonsense," "stuff," "indecency," "incoherent nonsense," "lunacy," "cracked." If he wants to be milder in his criticisms and more polished he will use the French word "timbre." This word is not so harsh as "cracked." Reader, if you have read these things, am I not right? One of the signs of mild lunacy is a lack of what has been called "sequaciousness of ideas." The mind of the stricken one jumps rapidly from one thing to another. There is no connection between the thoughts, no sequence of ideas, no logic, no principle, no creed, no code, no coherence. And these characteristics are found in our modern literature as frequently as in mild forms of insanity.

Why are they so frequent? Because the writers have no fixed ethical principles and no Christian faith. But that's a thesis which it would take too long to develop.

GLENDALE, CAL., DECEMBER 4, 1909

The NEWS is indebted to Hon. Chas. F. Curry, Esq., secretary of state for California, for a copy of Corporation Laws of California, compiled by Mr. Curry.

The parents of the school children of California have spent for the new state geography during the last three months, the sum of $52,883.65 and yet we are supposed to have a free school system!

The debate in the House of Lords is developing one interesting fact and that is that some of the members have been endowed with a good quality of brain matter, notwithstanding their handicap in the way of a title.

The United States has given the minister of Nicaragua his passports and is prepared to resort to extreme measures to bring President Zelaya to terms. We have no doubt but that the circumstances warrant the action taken by President Taft and Secretary Knox. We are not likely to acquire much glory from the affair, but it is a part of the "White Man's Burden."

It is really not sufficient in a country ruled by law, to be merely quite certain as to what one wants and to be regardless of the way in which it is obtained. There is a proper way under the constitution to obtain a state-wide prohibitory law, provided a majority of the citizens of the state want it, and that is through a constitutional amendment.

It may not be amiss to remind our friends in California who desire to see prohibition put into effect here, that it can be done in two ways only, either by electing to the legislature a majority of members pledged to the principle, with a governor who will agree to it, and thus openly and fairly securing a legislative enactment, or by influencing any legislature to submit the question to the people in the form of a constitutional amendment.

SUCCESS OF THE MONO-RAIL-GYROSCOPE PRINCIPLE.

A public demonstration was given in London on Nov. 11th which as described by a special correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, was a remarkable success. A car forty feet long, ten feet wide and thirteen feet high, weighing twenty-two tons, mounted on a single rail, carried forty passengers in safety and with less vibration to the car than is noticeable on an ordinary track. The speed made was twenty-five miles an hour; two gyroscopes weighing three quarters of a ton each, supplying perfect stability. A remarkable proof of the success of the application of this principle in what promises to revolutionize railroads, is the fact that the larger the car the more reliable seems to be its action, and the inventor, Mr. Louis Brennan, promises that with increase in size of car a speed of 150 miles an hour can be obtained as safely as 60 miles can under present conditions. Perhaps the most remarkable thing in the demonstration was the fact that when the forty passengers all crowded to one side of the car, the result was not the depression of that side, but the reverse, the gyroscope overcoming the inequality of weight.

INTERESTING TALK ON INDIA.

The talk upon the subject of India at the Presbyterian church last Sunday morning by Miss Eva Clark was one of great interest. Miss Clark's father was a British civil officer in India and her mother a high caste native, so that she is peculiarly well fitted to give details of Indian life as it is in the upper strata of society there. In addition to that her natural ability has been developed by culture, the result being an orator of unusual power, possessing a fluent command of the best English and the ability to hold the close attention of her audience. She paid a tribute to American institutions, declaring that to a native of India landing in New York, only the ordinary evidence of the senses was required to show the beneficent results of the Christian religion, particularly in regard to the position of women here as contrasted with the one they hold in her native country. The life of a woman in India, particularly in the higher social class, is often little better than that of a slave and some of the stories told to illustrate the fact were very pitiful. The religion of the country is directly responsible for this and there is no chance for better conditions without a change in religious belief. The English government compelled the natives to give up the ancient custom of burning the widow on the husband's funeral pyre and of drowning the girl babies in the Ganges, but that was the extreme limit to which governmental influence could go. Miss Clark appeared in the costume of a high caste Indian woman.

STANLEY AVENUE AND OTHERS.

The proceedings begun a few weeks ago for the opening of Stanley avenue have been abandoned. Speaking on general principles for the interests of the public at large and regardless of any of the details of this particular proposed public improvement, we regret the failure to open the street. We understand that property owners who had agreed to give land for the street, objected to being assessed to pay for a similar right of way through the property of their neighbors who would give nothing. There certainly is an element of injustice about this proposition which must be taken into account. If it is the wish of a majority of the property owners affected who hold also a majority of the frontage, it would seem that the equitable way would be to form an assessment district covering the territory immediately affected, collect the tax and pay every property owner for the land taken from him for public use, in proportion to his interest. After a good deal of hard work done by City Surveyor Lynch and Street Superintendent Sinclair, the consent of majority of property owners for the opening of Childs avenue has been secured and proceedings begun. This street will parallel Adams street on the East and will be a very valuable improvement. The East side needs more streets and must have them to enable it to keep up with the procession. No other factor has had so great an influence in the progress Glendale has made in the last two years, as the improvement made on our public thoroughfares. We have set a high standard and must live up to it. The home builder demands that his property have a frontage on an improved street and the mandate of the home builder is supreme.

THE PROHIBITION DEFEAT IN ALABAMA.

Alabama by a majority of nearly 20,000 voted against prohibition on Monday last. The issue is said to have been somewhat complicated, but the intense interest taken by both parties to the contest would seem to indicate lines rather closely drawn.

The Prohibitionists went to the polls with song and prayer as Cromwell and his roundheads went into battle, and the result seems to show that the resort to seventeenth century methods was not a success. One thing of interest in regard to the contest seems quite clear and that is that the prohibitionists were, ignorantly perhaps, fighting in defense of men whose conduct was indefensible. The majority of the members of the legislature were elected on a local option platform. Now local option and state-wide prohibition are as diametrically opposed to each other as are temperance and prohibition, and that difference is wide enough. The legislators elected to pass local option laws, took upon themselves the responsibility of passing very stringent state-wide prohibitory laws instead—many of them doubtless influenced to do so by purely political motives. This was little less than an act of treachery and in supporting it, the prohibitionists went down to a well deserved defeat, judging the case upon that issue alone.

We would expect, however, that that wing of the Prohibition party which follows in the footsteps of that rank demagogue, Eugene V. Chaffin, would get themselves into just such an illogical position. Mr. Chaffin declared in his California speeches that he did not care what the majority wanted if they did not want what was right. Which was only a modest way of saying that he has no respect for the will of the majority unless it happens to be the will of Eugene Chaffin!

THE SUPREME COURT AND THE CONSTITUTION.

Our Socialist friends are now engaged in a campaign the object of which is to create a contempt for the courts, particularly for the Supreme Court of the United States. It is hardly likely that they will succeed to any great extent, but the effect of the effort will as far as it goes, contribute its encouragement to those who while living under and enjoying day by day the benefits of a stable government, delight in conjuring up defects which become to them far more obvious than virtues. A writer in one of the Socialistic organs says that this "is not a democratic form of government, not even a representative government, etc.," and asserts that "the legislative power has passed into the hands of nine irresponsible men," meaning thereby the members of the Supreme Court. It is rather late in the day to promulgate this startling discovery. The Supreme Court of the United States has been in existence about 120 years, and the people in all that time have seemed to thrive reasonably well under the rule of the nine. The statement is not true, of course, that the government has passed into their hands, notwithstanding the fact that that body is the court of last resort in our government. The Supreme Court has a power similar to that of all other courts, a power merely negative. It says if it wills to do so that certain laws are not in accordance with the constitution, and therefore are null and void; or it stamps them with the seal of its approval. While it has this power over legislation, it is not a legislative body and does not create laws. The principal function of the Supreme Court is to interpret the constitution which may well be termed the backbone of our government. The fact that the people of the country have in these 120 years had no real cause to complain of the rulings of this court, is in itself very weighty evidence in its favor as a part of our political system and the highest possible tribute to the men composing it. In protecting itself and the government that it represents from the lawbreakers who defied it, the court has naturally won the enmity of those whom it has been compelled to punish; but had it proved its incompetence by doing otherwise than it did in these cases, it would have lost the respect and confidence of a very much larger proportion of the American people. The constitution of the United States grows in greatness with the passage of the years; it was the product of the brains of men whose wisdom and patriotism has not been excelled by any body of men ever assembled, and is not likely to be eclipsed by any assemblage of malcontents that the twentieth century can produce.

* * *

Since the beginning of its history the judges of the Supreme Court have invariably been selected from among the ablest and most loyal members of the bar. Being appointed by the president and to serve during their good conduct (not necessarily for life) they are removed as far as possible from the influences of politics. Rarely, if ever, has any member of that august body been touched by scandal. Theirs is every natural inducement that can be presented to the human mind to deal fairly and honestly with all men, and that they have done so throughout the 120 years of the court's existence, is we believe the almost universal opinion of their countrymen. Many of the miscarriages of justice in our lower courts are due to the influence exerted over the mind of the judge by the actions of partisans whose clamor affects the decisions of the court regardless of all questions of merit. No man in any public office dependent for his position upon the popular vote can remain wholly uninfluenced by public opion, and yet it is the duty of a just and fearless judge to render his decisions uninfluenced by any thought of the popularity or unpopularity of his actions.

Democracy needs just such a check as the Supreme Court affords. Aggregations of individuals have all the characteristics of the one and the wise man having a heavy responsibility devolve upon him will seek the advice of those who are his equals or superiors in wisdom, he would say in effect to such an one, "If you see that I am doing wrong, restrain me." This check which the wise man in a position of great responsibility would willingly put upon himself, is precisely similar to the idea of wholesome restraint which the wise forefathers of the republic had in mind when they created the Supreme Court. The Socialists would have us believe that it was an awful thing to attempt thus to protect the people from themselves. The lower house of congress is the body most nearly in touch with the people as the representatives in that body must submit themselves to the people every two years for election. These reformers who are so anxious for the "people to rule" would have this heterogeneous body of men drawn from every walk in life, pass laws covering innumerable subjects in regard to which only a small proportion of the legislators would have special knowledge, subject to neither the concurrence of the senate nor the approval of any higher body! Imagining the result of such legislation, one may fervently pray with all sincerity "From such Good Lord deliver us."

SENT TO PATTON.

A man named Shepherd, who has been around Glendale for some months, was taken to the home of a relative in Santa Monica last week by City Marshal Miller, as his actions had made him an object of suspicion. Later he was taken before the court in Los Angeles and sent to the asylum at Patton. His hallucinations were along religious lines.

MARS.

New Theories on the Canals of Mars—the Origin of Moons and Other Astronomical Problems.

By J. S. Nichols.

(A paper before the Glendale Society for Scientific Research.)

As a deduction of many years' study of the laws of physics as applied to astronomy, I believe that when we learn the facts concerning the canal-like appearances marking the surface of the planet Mars, they will be discovered to be stupendous fissures in the globe's crust, brought about by internal convulsions, the result of which was the birth of one or more satellites.

When the waters of Mars had for the most part resolved its equatorial regions into a vast plane, the waters then diffused had little depth, and from evaporation the atmosphere became rarified and the planet's crust dry and dense, far into its surface; in this state volcanic eruptions would be few, and in consequence the globe became a veritable and stupendous magazine of dynamic energy and had but to await the opportune moment when from planetary perturbations together with the magnetic pull of sun spots, to open the floor of a polar sea, and precipitate upon the molten mass at the planet's center an ocean of water ice and snow, and the force thus generated might be sufficient to burst the globe and throw into space the heated nucleus; if this were sent forth in the path of the planet's revolution the two bodies might reunite; but if ejected in opposition to its orbital course, momentum and gravitation with the expelled mass might overcome the attraction of the parent body when the newly born satellite would scon determine an orbit of its own.

From the present aspect of the surface of Mars, it is probable that at no remote period two moons had birth at about the same time, and the parent orb collapsing at its center, gave rise to the great geometrical fissures now marking its surface, while gravitation and waters from the poles are fast re-establishing the surface, more especially at the junction of the cross fissures.

From the sides of these fissures we might presume to occasionally witness the flame of ignited gas and oil, especially if the phenomenon occurred on the side of the planet o posite the sun (hence the "Signal from Mars.").

When our own moon was thus born it must have left the earth from the southern hemisphere, and the crust being less dense than that of Mars the collapse made our great Pacific Basin, threw into prominence new mountain ranges, submerging vast areas of previously existing highlands, thus bringing about a shifting of the earth's center of gravity (turning its more dense portion toward the sun) and gave us the geological study of the Glacier Period.

Mathematica.ly Mars should be attended by an earlier and larger satellite and much further removed from its source, than either of those of modern discovery; a catastrophe of natural occurrence may have resolved one such into the circle of meteors which now traverse an orbit between our own and our, at present, most interesting neighbor.

From the dense atmosphere surrounding the planet Venus we may believe she is rotating in the carboniferous age of growth and may at any time disclose the fact that she has experienced parturition and in consequence, attended by her first satellite.

It may be asked in what way does a planet become again molten at its center after a like mass has been expelled.

The study of physics leads the writer to believe that a body such as a planet, even if suddenly cooled and solid at its center, would (if the center of gravity were off the center of mass), be, by gravitorial pressure turned on its axis; rotation would give centrifugal force, which with opposing gravitation would in time describe within the revolving body a circle of friction that in time would resolve the inner portion to a molten mass.

With a study of the asteroids, we may behold what the birth of one or more moons has done for the planet which once comprised the greater mass of those planetoids. Rent asunder at parturition, the fragments of planet, together with its satellites now travel the orbit as a cluster.

If the foregoing is in accordance with facts, it is hardly probable that any more than a low order of life can at present exist on Mars and our late discoveries tend to show that recent pertubations may have obliterated many of the former curious markings on the planet's surface.

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING.

There seems to be considerable activity in real estate; no large transactions are reported, but inquiries are numerous and home builders are constantly being added to our population.

Mr. H. S. Duffield has sold his home on Lomita avenue and will build on an adjoining lot.

Mr. F. H. Eilers and Stella Eilers have sold their five acres on Ninth street east of Glendale avenue, the north half to the Misses Jeanette, Ida and Myrtle Baldwin, all of whom are teachers in the Los Angeles Polytechnic High school. The south half fronting on Tenth street has been purchased by Mr. A. B. Noble, formerly of the firm of Noble Brothers, Glendale. Mr. Eilers will immediately erect a small building on the rear of his lots in the McIntyre tract on Adams street above Fourth, preliminary to further improvements there.

James Wyvell reports the sale of a lot 50x200 on Louise street, north of Dryden street. Nels J. Mellin to Wm. A. Wright; price $625.

Among building permits granted during the past week are the following:

H. W. Nixon, addition to house on the property recently belonging to A. L. Smith; $1000.

H. S. Duffield, Lomita avenue, near Brand boulevard, six room residence; cost $3000.

Methodist church addition for Sunday school room; $500.

Total number of permits for month of November 26. Amount of improvements covered by same, $20,420.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Newspaper Bible Study Club.

Dec. 5th, 1909.

(Copyright, 1909, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

Golden Text—Remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, it is more blessed to give than to receive. Acts xx:35.

Are these words in the Golden Text quoted from Jesus, hyperbolical, that is, a rhetorical over-statement, or is it literally true, that it is more blessed to give than to receive, and if so, why? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Verses 1-6—Is it according to animal nature, or to average human nature, to give to others outside of kith and kin?

Is giving liberally, intelligently and systematically, to religion and charity, always a "grace," that is, an inclination Divinely imparted?

What is the relation between giving and loving?

If we are in need or "affliction" ourselves, will the grace of giving still operate in us, if our hearts are right?

May "deep poverty," great "joy" and rich "liberality" be in the same life, and is such a combination natural or supernatural?

There was great poverty and suffering among the Christians at Jerusalem, and the liberality of the poor churches at Macedonia to relieve their need is what Paul here refers to; contrast the evil at Jerusalem, with the resultant good grace of giving developed at Macedonia, and say which is the greater; that is did the result do as much good, or exceed the evil done by the cause?

Titus it would appear was appointed to present to the Corinthians the need of the Jerusalem Christians, to take up a collection, and to develop in them the grace of giving; why is there no work more noble, or duty more imperative, than for ministers and teachers to teach the people the duty and joy of giving?

Verses 7-8—Paul apparently assumes that a person may abound "in faith and utterance, and knowledge, * * * and in * * love," and not abound in the grace of giving; but is he right, for how can such a thing be possible?

Paul states that he did not urge the grace of giving by "commandment"; is it therefore any less the duty, and privilege of every Christian, rich and poor, to abound in this grace?

Verse 9—What should be the supreme motive, and what is the greatest inducement to give liberally?

What is the chief grace in the resplendent character of Jesus?

Did the giving of Jesus of himself, and all he had for us, imply permanent poverty for him, or was it the surest way to all that great wealth is supposed to stand for?

Why does giving of all kinds finally result in getting more of that which we give, than would be possible if we kept it? (Think of money, love, knowledge, experience, encouragement, etc.)

Verses 10-11—What is the difference in promising a subscription to religion or benevolence and not paying it, and not paying your grocer or baker?

Verses 12-14—What is the proportion of our income which the Bible demands of us, as a minimum?

What are some of the many advantages of the tithing system?

Verse 15—What reason is there to believe that if we give systematically to God's cause that we ourselves shall never lack?

Lesson for Sunday, Dec. 12th, 1909. Paul's Last Words. II. Tim. iv:1-18.

Sunset in "the Red City" of Bavaria.

The numerous entrances to the old town of Rothenburg are guarded by beautiful watchtowers, which are inhabited by impoverished old women, who rent their airy lodgings for a nominal sum. The red twinkle of their lamps high over the dusky streets of Rothenburg at night—for it is as mediaeval in its lighting as in many other ways—is very charming in effect. The walls of Rothenburg are a constant delight to visitors, who, by dint of much squeezing through narrow passageways and groping in darkness, are able to make a circuit of the city, getting glimpses on the way through loopholes of the green country outside. Wondrous views of the town are also to be had from many of the distant hills. At sunset the sight of its graceful towers and clutter of red roof tops is like a fair vision of romance. The city blazes for a moment in a fiery mist, then suddenly melts, mirage-like, in the gathering dusk, leaving a sense of something born of dream, the illusion of an enchanter's wand.—Rothenburg Letter to Vogue.

Thought She Had Arrived.

"I have moved into a perfect gem of an apartment on the sixth floor of one of those new houses," said the woman who paints china, "and am reveling in its liberal supply of fresh air and sunlight."

"But don't you find the stairs an overbalancing disadvantage?" asked an acquaintance.

"The thought of the cozy quarters at such moderate cost colors my climb with the roseate hue of optimism," laughed the artist, "but one of my customers, middle aged and filled with good food and the joy of living, evidently found it a harrowing experience.

"It seemed ages that I waited in the hall after the ringing of the lower bell, and upon hearing the labored breathing of my ascending visitor I ran back for the smelling salts.

"When I had administered all the means of resuscitation at hand she managed to articulate between gasps:

"'I thought St. Peter always opened the door.'"—New York Times.

Food of the Chinese.

In the Revue d'Hygiene Dr. Malegnon, who lived for many years in China, gives some curious details of the food of the Chinese. This is what he says of the sons of heaven and the way they eat eggs: "The Chinese are great eaters of eggs, which they take hard boiled. One finds them in all the roadside places for refreshment. The Celestials have an expression, 'Eggs of a hundred years.' The eggs are not always a century in age, but one is able to get them of many years' standing. The Celestials have a preference for the egg of the duck or goose. They are placed with aromatic herbs in slaked lime for a period, the minimum time of treatment being five or six weeks. Under the influence of time the yoke liquefies and takes a dark green color. The white coagulates and becomes green. The product of the eggs, which has a strong odor, from which a stranger betakes himself quickly, the Chinese eat as hors d'oeuvres, and it is said to have the taste of lobster."

Expense No Object.

During an inclement spell of weather a lady of the order of the newly rich was so unfortunate as to contract a painful affection of the throat, and she accordingly accepted the advice of a friend that she consult a great London specialist noted for his expensive fees.

"Your ailment is not a serious one," said the specialist after examination. "You'll soon be all right. I'll just indicate to your family surgeon precisely where to touch your throat with nitrate of silver, and I think that will meet the case exactly."

"Oh, doctor," protested the wealthy matron in a tone of mingled surprise and indignation, "do order him to use nitrate of gold! Expense is a matter, I assure you, quite immaterial to me!"—London Answers.

Spontaneous Combustion.

Spontaneous combustion can only occur when oxidation causes the temperature to rise to the ignition point of the material. Spontaneous combustion of the human body is impossible on account of the heat regulating effect of the 75 or 80 per cent of water contained. The enormous heat necessary to dry the tissues sufficiently would destroy life long before ignition could take place. An old idea was that the alcohol in a confirmed drunkard might promote combustion, but Liebig showed that even if the body could give off inflammable vapor and this could become ignited the body itself would not be set on fire.

Her Proposal.

"You've been courting me now for a number of years, George," remarked a girl to a young man, "and I want to make a little leap year proposal."

"I—I am not in a position to m-marry just yet," stammered the youth, "but"—

"Who said anything about marriage?" interrupted the girl. "I was going to propose that you stop coming here and give somebody else a chance."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Man's Superiority.

"Woman," exclaimed the suffragette, "is the equal of man in every respect."

"Oh, I don't know," replied a man in the audience; "it takes a man to put an angleworm on a fishhook."—Detroit Free Press.

Nurse and Nursery Combined.

A recent visitor to Brittany describes in the New Orleans Times-Democrat the two story closed bed of the Breton peasant, in many cases a richly carved and ornamented heirloom and always highly prized.

One day the visitor was expressing her admiration of a certain "lit-clos," when madam pulled the sliding panels apart and revealed the figure of her husband sleepily rubbing his eyes and wanting to know what was the matter. She calmly explained to him that the visitor wanted to see the inside of the bed and then explained to the visitor that her good man had been out fishing since dawn and was very tired. The visitor begged him to close the panels and go to sleep again, which he immediately did, but not before she noticed that he was fully dressed. It seems that the Breton peasant always disappears into the "lit-clos" fully dressed and always emerges therefrom in the same condition. While her husband slept madam enlarged on the advantages of a "lit-clos" in bringing up a family.

"I have had six children," she said, "and when they were little I used to put three in the top story and three in the bottom, then close the panels and leave them with an easy mind."

A Singular Meal.

One of the most singular meals ever eaten was that given to a select few by an antiquary named Goebel in Brussels some years ago. The bread was made from wheat grown before the children of Israel passed out of Egypt, and it was spread with butter made when Elizabeth ruled England. For fruit there were apples which ripened before the Christian era, and the wine was older than the white man's knowledge of the new world. The bread was made from wheat taken from a chamber in one of the pyramids, the butter (of which there were several pounds) had been found in an earthen crock on a stone shelf under the icy waters of a well in Scotland. A pantry in the ruins of Pompeii had furnished the jar of apples (which were as sweet and finely flavored as if only a few months old), and the flagon of wine had been recovered from an old vault in Corinth. Six guests enjoyed this amazing meal.—Chicago News.

The Englishman and His "Bawth."

"I had a bachelor apartment at one time with an Englishman, who was always talking about his 'bawth, you know,'" said a New York banker. "The first thing of a morning he said: 'I must take my bawth, you know. Really, now, I must take my bawth—haw, haw!'

"He did so much talking about his 'bawth' that I stayed one morning to see him take it—to see if it was different from the bath of the American.

"It was. This is what he did: First he spread a soft towel at the botton of the bathtub, then turned on the water until it was about two inches high.

"'So as not to chill my feet, you know—haw, haw!' he explained to me.

"Then he stood on the soft towel in the two inches of water, turned on the spray, sprang through it, leaped out and rushed for a towel.

Doors in China.

In China doors are often round, leaf shaped or semicircular. In placing them the builder usually avoids having one opposite another lest evil spirits find their way from the street into the recesses of the building. The doorways separating the courts of a garden are usually of an elaborate kind, and the octagonal form is one of the most popular. Religious superstition asserts itself in Chinese architecture, and the universal sacredness of the numerals 3 and 9 is shown in the arrangement of temple doors. There is a triple gateway to each of the halls of the imperial palace, and the same order prevails at the Ming tombs. The Temple of Heaven has a triple roof, a triple marble staircase, and all its mystic symbolism points either to 3 or its multiples.

The Color of Lakes.

Some lakes are distinctly blue, others are of various shades of green, so that in some cases they are scarcely distinguishable from their level, grass surrounded banks. A few, too, are almost black. The Lake of Geneva is azure hued, the Lake of Constance and the Lake of Lucerne are green, while the color of the Mediterranean has been called indigo. The Lake of Briens is greenish yellow, and its neighbor, Lake Thun, is blue.

Fashion, Not Health.

In nine cases out of ten, says the Iowa Health Bulletin, if a physician tells a woman that in order to improve her health she must wear her clothes in a certain way she will follow the advice of her dressmaker instead.

A Total Abstainer.

Excited Individual—Is this where they swear people? Commissioner For Oaths—Yes, sir. What can I do for you? Excited Individual—I want to take an oath never to put down another carpet.—London Telegraph.

Accommodating Him.

Youth—Oh, I don't want to take that character. I'll make a fool of myself sure. Maiden—Well, you said you wanted an easy part.—Detroit Free Press.

Chased by a Sea Serpent.

"Ever see a sea serpent?"

"I was chased by one once."

"What did you do?"

"Got up and lit the gas."—Pittsburg Post.

Tragic Tale of a Tragedian.

"The awfulest and the funniest stage wait I ever lived through," said a sprightly English actress, "was when a certain well known London actor manager, whose name I dare not divulge, was doing a tremendous curse scene on a darkened stage. He had the audience spellbound with his sonorous declamation, which, of course, they didn't know depended largely upon his ample mouthful of false teeth. At the very climax of his blood-curdling maledictions the entire dental collection dropped out suddenly in the excitement of the moment and bounded into some obscure hiding place. The tragedian's mighty voice died down to an unintelligible mumble as he groped about frantically in search of the missing masticators. We were all too helpless from laughter to be of much help in this critical situation. At last, after what seemed like half an hour of the most hysterical suspense, the stage manager located the teeth with the aid of a dark lantern and restored them to the frantic star, who clapped them into his mouth and began cursing again with redoubled earnestness. I never knew what the audience thought, and no one ever dared to ask the actor manager."—New York World.

Quicksilver.

The ore from which quicksilver is obtained is a brilliant red rock known as cinnabar. When of high purity it is actually vermilion in color. Cinnabar is the original source of the pigment known commercially as vermilion. It is a compound of sulphur and quicksilver, and in order to separate the latter from the sulphur the rock is roasted. Passing off in the form of a gas, the mercury is afterward condensed and flows out in a fine stream, like a continuous pencil of molten silver. Like gold and silver, mercury is occasionally found in a native or pure state. Sometimes the miner's pick penetrates a cavity that contains a cupful or more of the elusive and beautiful fluid. Miners suffer much from the poisonous effects of the quicksilver fumes. Extreme cleanliness is the best safeguard for workers in this dangerous occupation. Use is also made of a sort of lemonade which serves to a certain extent as an antidote, a strong acid taking the place of lemon juice in the composition of the drink.

Must Keep the Curtains Up.

"In London it is strictly against the law for the driver of any public conveyance to allow the curtains of his vehicle to be pulled down," said a man who has visited the English metropolis. "By day or night the windows of cabs, hansoms, carriages, or what not, whether drawn by horses or propelled by electric power, must be so open to public inspection as to allow a plain view of those occupying the interior. A closed rig wouldn't get a block before a London bobby would nab its driver and hale him to a magistrate's office, where he would get no mercy. The law is based on the theory that closed vehicles lend themselves easily to the commission of robbery or murder and that they may also assist a criminal to make his escape."—Baltimore American.

The Gorgons.

The Gorgons were creatures of Greek mythology, mentioned by Homer and Euripides as being of peculiarly abhorrent aspect. Their hair was composed of serpents, their bodies covered with scales and girdled with reptiles with heads erect, vibrating their tongues threateningly, while the hands of the Gorgons, adorned with sharp talons, were of brass. The gaze of the monsters was deadly, all upon whom they fixed their eyes being turned to stone. One of the three terrible sisters was conquered and beheaded by Perseus, and as he took flight in the air en route for Ethiopia, holding the severed head in his hands, the drops of blood which fell from it became serpents, which ever after infested the sands of Lybia.—New York Telegram.

Avoided the Conventional.

"It is a wonderful story," says the publisher to the new author, whose manuscript has just been accepted, "but you have failed in one important feature. You do not describe the way the heroine was dressed when the hero first met her. You'd better write in a paragraph about her clothes, but try to avoid the conventional."

The ingenious author, knowing the sameness of costume descriptions in the best sellers and also knowing how to make an appeal to the feminine heart, wrote:

"Heloise floated toward him garbed in a $600 dress, a $250 hat, with a $98.75 mantilla over a $375 lace coat."—Chicago Post.

Sorry He Spoke.

He was very deferential, but he was a deacon in the church, and he felt that he had a right to criticise. "I hope you'll pardon me," he said, "if I suggest that your sermons are—ah"—

"Too prosy, I suppose?" suggested the minister.

"Oh, no, not that, but too long."

"But you mustn't blame me for that," returned the minister pleasantly. "If you knew a little more I wouldn't have to tell you so much."

Shaving.

When asked whether Napoleon shaved himself Talleyrand replied: "Yes. One born to be a king has some one to shave him, but they who acquire kingdoms shave themselves." Dionysius, the tyrant of Syracuse, not daring to commit himself to a barber's hands, is said to have singed his own beard with glowing walnut shells.

Pleasure once tasted satisfies less than the desire experienced for it torments.

Juliet Got the Light.

At a small seaport town a star actress of the third magnitude appeared as Juliet.

"I cannot do justice to myself," she said to the manager, "if I do not have a limelight thrown on me when I appear at the balcony."

"We ain't got no limelight, miss, but I think we could get you a ship's blue light," replied the obliging manager, and to this the lady agreed.

The lad who went to the shop to buy the blue light brought back a signal rocket, which was given to him by mistake. The prompter took the rocket in good faith.

Romeo—He jests at scars who never felt a wound.

(Juliet appears. Prompter lights a match.)

"But, soft! What light through yonder windows breaks?"

(This was the match lighting the fuse.)

"Arise, fair sun!"

The sun, or, rather, the rocket, did rise with a terrific hiss. Juliet was knocked off the balcony, the fly borders were set on fire, and the theater was filled with a sulphurous smoke, while the audience, which was fortunately a small one, made a stampede to the doors.

Since then "Romeo and Juliet" has always been looked upon in that town as a dramatic work that could not be witnessed without personal danger.—London Express.

The Foiler Foiled.

Recently one young man bet another that he could not break an egg placed on the floor of their room by hitting it with a barrel. The second young man promptly took the bet.

Thereupon the first young man carefully placed an egg in a corner of the room, just where the walls made a right angle, so that it was impossible for the other to hit the egg with an ordinary barrel.

Then the first young man proceeded to gloat.

But the other suddenly produced a revolver and broke the egg by tapping it smartly with the barrel of the weapon. Then he demanded the money.

There was quite a dispute naturally. Finally the two agreed to submit the question to the editor of a sporting paper. In due time the answer came. The sporting authority decided that the second young man was the winner of the bet, since the other had not specified in any way what kind of barrel should be used for the destruction of the egg.—New York Times.

Origin of the Term "Gringo."

To the average Mexican all Americans are "gringos." They are too polite to call you a gringo to your face, but among themselves it is the term generally used in referring to Americans. It is a term of disrespect, just as "greaser" when applied to a Mexican is an opprobrious term. "Gringo" had its origin during our war with Mexico in 1847. Bobby Burns' song, with the chorus,

Green grow the rashes, O!
Green grow the rashes, O!
The sweetest hours that e'er I spend
Are spent among the lasses, O!

was very popular then, and our soldiers in Mexico sang it on the march and on nearly every occasion. "Green grow" sounded like "gringo" to the Mexicans unacquainted with English, and they quickly learned to speak of the American soldiers as "gringos," and thenceforth this appellation has been attached to all Americans.—Outing Magazine.

Three Kinds of Cigars.

What is a Havana cigar? George Augustus Sala, who had studied Cuban cigarmaking on the spot, once set forth that three kinds of cigars come from Havana itself—first, genuine Havanas, made of tobacco grown, cured and rolled in the island of Cuba; second, cigars composed inside of United States or European tobacco imported into Cuba, with an outside wrapper of Havana leaf; third, cigars brought ready made from Europe, mostly from Bremen and Switzerland, and re-exported from Havana to Europe, where they pay duty and are sold to the unwary as "Havanas."

The Romance of Other Years.

"One of the most beautiful smiles ever seen upon the face of mortal suffused itself on the countenance of Lord St. Orville as he fell at the feet of Julia in a deathlike swoon." You probably suppose that this sentence is an extract from some schoolgirl's novelette; but, in fact, it comes from a novel which eighty years ago was seen on the tables of most people of taste and culture. That is the style which was delectable in the brave days of old.—London Telegraph.

Not Guilty.

"I have orders to arrest all blind beggars," said the policeman, not unkindly, to the man with an "I Am Blind" placard.

"Go your way," responded the mendicant blithely. "I can see as well as you can. That placard is part of the fake."

Where Clothes Are No Clew.

A man's golfing garb not only affords no clew to his golfing ability, but it does not give the slightest indication of his social position or wealth or even of his taste.—Golf Illustrated.

"Little Englands."

The English always carry with them their national customs, and wherever they settle down, even for awhile, they organize "little Englands."—Paris Opinion.

Nature as a Designer.

Not the least mysterious of all the wonders of the earth is the extraordinary cleverness of Dame Nature as a carver and designer. Her tools are air, rain, rivers, springs and frost. Any one who has ever seen the marvelous Queen Bess rock on the north Cornish coast, that wonderful presentment of Queen Elizabeth, who is seated so grandly upon the sands, must have asked himself the question as to how much a thing could have been accomplished. Continuous trickling of water wears away the face of the rock. Haphazard it was until at last a weird pattern is formed that sometimes resembles a man's face, sometimes an animal. All over the world Nature has placed her picture gallery and her collection of statuary, the biggest free show in the world.

Another work of Nature's that very often results in extraordinary changes being effected is a landslip. And landslips have arisen from the tiniest possible causes. A little underground flow of water had gradually undermined a hill or cliff until at last the earth became like a hollow nut. Then the soil became top heavy. The sea beat against its foundations, and millions of tons of earth were flung into the sea, which proves the axiom that the tiniest beginnings often produce the mightiest ends.—London Standard.

English Luggage Lifters.

English railway companies suffer severely through the purloining of passengers' baggage and other articles by platform thieves, and in some cases it is a difficult matter to find out the miscreant. One of these luggage lifters was on an occasion some time ago seen keeping vigil over a barrow of luggage, and in his hand he carried apparently a good sized portmanteau. He walked up and down the platform several times and at last stopped opposite the luggage. Placing his bag on the barrow for a moment, he then picked it up and walked off. But the lynx eye of one of the railway officials had also been watching the barrow, and, going up to the man, had him arrested and searched. It was found that his apparent portmanteau was only a skeleton and inside had a set of springs, etc., which, when placed over a smaller bag, held the latter in position. But for the smartness of the official another traveler's bag would have been missing.—London Answers.

The Hollow Bones of Birds.

The hollow bones of birds are frequently cited as beautiful instances of providential mechanics in building the strongest and largest possible limb with the least expenditure of material, and this is largely true, and yet birds, like ducks, which cleave the air with the speed of an express train, have the long bones filled with marrow or saturated with fat, while the lumbering hornbill, that fairly hurtles over the treetops, has one of the most completely pneumatic skeletons imaginable, permeated with air to the very toe tips, and the ungainly pelican is nearly as well off. Still, it is but fair to say that the frigate bird and turkey buzzards, creatures which are most at ease when on the wing, have extremely light and hollow bones; but, comparing one bird with another, the paramount importance of a pneumatic skeleton to a bird is not as evident as that of a pneumatic tire to a bicycle.—Exchange.

An Earl's Duel With a Butler.

About the middle of the last century the Lord Rosebery of that time was in Paris, and in paying a call one day he was received so rudely by the butler that he complained to his friend of the servant's conduct. But the butler had been a noncommissioned officer in the French army, and as such he challenged Lord Rosebery to a duel. The earl accepted, and two shots were exchanged without result. But Lord Rosebery was angered at his own condescension and afraid his antagonist might lay aside his military rank and resume his duties as a servant, thus exposing an earl to the reproach of having fought with a butler. So he settled an annuity of £250 on the man on condition he did not return to domestic service. The condition was faithfully observed on both sides.

Lord Russell's Retort.

Lord Russell once presided at a dinner given for Sir Henry Irving on his return from America. While the dinner was in progress Lord Russell suggested to Comyns Carr that he propose Sir Henry's health. "I can't make speeches, you know," he said.

Sir Henry gently replied, "I heard you make a fine speech before the Parnell commission."

To which the pungent Irishman answered, "Oh, yes, but then I had something to talk about!"

Before and After.

"That couple used to be inseparable a year ago," he observed, "and now you hardly ever see them together. Why is it? Do you know?"

"Yes," said she. "They weren't married a year ago."—New York Press.

Their Present Names.

"What are the names of that young couple next door?"

"We won't be able to find out for several weeks. They've just been married, and he calls her Birdie, and she calls him Pettie."

The Touch.

"Shadbolt, did you ever have a touch of anything like the appendicitis?"

"Once. Have you forgotten, Dinguss, that when you were operated on for it you touched me for an even hundred?"—Chicago Tribune.

Wasted All Three Wishes.

An Irish legend has it that a good fairy once visited an old couple and promised them that any three wishes they would make would be granted. After racking their brains for some time in an endeavor to discover what they desired most the couple decided to visit the county fair to see if something there would suggest what they wanted. They did so, and, after rambling around all day and not seeing anything that exactly suited them, toward evening they found themselves before a display of kitchen utensils. Among them was a soup ladle, cheap, but likely to appeal to a woman, so the old woman in an absent moment said, "Oh, I wish I had one of those," and immediately she had it. The old man was so enraged because his wife had thoughtlessly thrown away one valuable wish that he retorted, "I wish that was stuck down your throat," and immediately this was done. Thereupon he was at once sorry at what he wished, and the only thing left to do was to wish the ladle out again. So all three wishes went for naught.

How Snakes Get Over Ground.

Although the snake appears to have no legs or feet, it may be said to be practically supplied with upward of a hundred pairs of them. In fact, each joint of the backbone bears a pair of ribs, which are mobile and have their points attached to the inner surface of one of the large transverse, platelike scales which clothe the undersurface of the body. Thus by the movements of the ribs attached to it each plate can be drawn forward and its margin applied to the ground. By the successive application of these multitudinous plates the body can be drawn forward in a straight line without its being thrown into undulations from side to side. But rapid movements are also effected by such undulations, and serpents can by pressure and appropriate muscular action climb trees and sometimes spring forward. They also swim easily by lateral flexures, but no serpents advance by vertical bendings of the body, though they are so often drawn in such an attitude.

Bolivia's Electrical Storms.

Owing to the peculiar topographical formation of Bolivia, electric and other phenomena are of constant occurrence, the principal zone where such disturbances take place being the Altiplanicie, or grand plateau. As the atmosphere is heavily charged with electricity both in summer and winter, dry or electric storms are of frequent occurrence both on the plateau and in the valleys. Before the rainy season sets in electrical accumulation becomes considerable on the plateau region, its most violent manifestations taking place toward the eastern section of the tablelands. An electrical storm in these regions is always a most imposing spectacle, as the tremendous force of the wind, almost equal to a hurricane, and the heavy electrical accumulation in the clouds produce terrible atmospheric explosions and violent detonations, while the surface of the ground sparkles and crackles.

ORDINANCE NO. 112.

An Ordinance of the City of Glendale establishing rates to be charged for electricity by said City and prescribing rules and regulations concerning the sale of electricity and fixing a penalty for violation thereof.

The Board of Trustees of the City of Glendale do ordain as follows:

Section 1. The rates for electric current to be charged and collected by the City of Glendale for electricity supplied to its consumers for electric lighting by incandescent lamps shall be as follows:

For each kilowatt hour when the total consumption per month amounts to less than 100 kilowatt hours, ten (10) cents;

For each kilowatt hour when the total consumption amounts to more than 100 kilowatt hours and less than 200 kilowatts, nine (9) cents;

For each kilowatt hour when the total consumption per month amounts to more than 200 kilowatts, eight (8) cents.

The number of kilowatt hours used shall be calculated each calendar month and the charge therefor shall be based upon the number of kilowatt hours used during each respective month.

The minimum monthly charge for electric incandescent lighting shall be One Dollar ($1.00).

The above rates shall apply to all electric current for whatever purpose used which is measured through a meter used for measuring electric current for incandescent lamps.

Sec. 2. The rates for electric current to be charged and collected by said City for electricity supplied to its consumers to operate power or heating devices shall be as follows:

For each kilowatt hour when the total consumption per month amounts to less than 100 kilowatt hours, eight (8) cents;

For each kilowatt hour when the total consumption per month amounts to more than 100 kilowatts seven and one-half (7½) cents.

The minimum monthly charge for electricity for power or heating devices, excepting three phase motors where separate meters are installed for the purposes set forth in this section, shall be one and one-half (1½) dollars for one and one-half (1½) horse power capacity of meter installed, or less, and one dollar for each additional horsepower capacity. In charging for capacity installed above one horsepower the least fractional part of a horsepower to be considered for this service will be one-half (½) horsepower.

The minimum monthly charge for electric current where used for three-phase motors shall be Two (2) Dollars for two horsepower capacity of meter installed, and One (1) Dollar for each additional horsepower capacity. The least fractional part of a horsepower to be considered for this service will be one-half horsepower. When for any reason a meter fails to register during any period, a charge shall be made upon an estimate based on an average reading of said meter.

Sec. 3 All electricity furnished to consumers in the City of Glendale shall be charged to the owners of premises upon which the electricity shall have been used, and the owner of said premises shall be held liable for the payment of the rates for the electricity used upon the premises owned by him.

In all cases the City will assume that electricity has been used where any person or persons have had the opportunity to use the same, and even though such person or persons may not have used any electricity during the month they will not be entitled to any rebate from the regular rate provided in such cases, unless they have notified the Manager of the Electric Light Works in writing to cut off such service.

The Manager of the Electric Light Works shall cut off or cause to be cut off the electric service in all cases where this Ordinance has been violated, and it shall not be connected again until all charges due the City up to the time the service was cut off, including the penalty for delinquency and the further sum of One ($1.00) Dollar, are paid.

Sec. 4. All meter rates for electricity used in any month are due and payable upon presentation of bill for the amount of electricity consumed, or if no bill is presented, then they are due and payable on the 3rd day of the succeeding month at the office of the Manager of the Electric Light Works, and if not so paid by the twentieth of the month, there shall be added ten per cent penalty for delinquency; and the Manager of the Electric Light Works shall give notice to the delinquent by mailing to him a statement of the amount due and the penalty thereon. If the said rate and penalty for delinquency thereon is not paid within five days thereafter, the Manager of the Electric Light Works shall immediately without further notice shut off the electricity from the premises of the delinquent, and the electric service shall not be renewed for them, or any subsequent occupant, except upon the payment of the whole amount due to the City for electricity used up to the time the electricity is so shut off, including the penalty for delinquency and the further sum of One Dollar.

Sec. 5. The Manager of the Electric Light Works or any other duly authorized officer of the City shall be admitted at all reasonable hours to any premises supplied with electricity for the purpose of reading meters or making any repairs or changes or inspection of the electric system upon such premises.

No one except the Manager of the Electric Light Works, or some one duly authorized by him shall connect or disconnect the electric service from any building or premises; and no person shall in any manner meddle or interfere with any part of said Electric Light Works system without written permission of the Manager of the Electric Light Works.

Sec. 6. The City of Glendale shall not be responsible for damages to the buildings or their contents, or any accidents or personal injury suffered or occasioned by the defective condition or negligent use of any electric wiring or apparatus used in connection with such Electric system upon any premises beyond the point where the meter is located for such premises or upon any portion of said premises over which private parties have control.

Sec. 7. Regular rates for electricity will be charged in every instance for premises vacated until the City shall have been notified in writing by the owner or his agent, filed with the Manager of the Electric Light Works, of the discontinuance of the use of electricity upon such premises.

Sec. 8. The Manager of the Electric Light Works shall read or cause to be read all meters connected with the Electric Light Works system during the last four days of each month, and at such other times as may be required, and shall report the same immediately to the City Clerk.

The City Clerk shall thereupon make out and deliver for collection to the Manager of the Electric Light Works, receipts with stubs numbered the same as the receipts, and charge him therewith.

The Manager of the Electric Light Works shall keep a complete set of books or system of accounts showing all financial transactions of the City of Glendale in reference to said Electric Light Works, and he shall make, or cause to be made, all collections for electric service.

He shall pay over to the City Treasurer on or before the 21st day of each month all electric rates collected by him, taking the City Treasurer's receipt in duplicate therefor, one of which receipts he shall file with the City Clerk, and he shall report to the Board of Trustees at the first regular meeting in each month an itemized financial statement of said Electric Light Works for the previous month, and make a settlement with the City Clerk for all receipts charged to him by the City Clerk for the previous month. The Manager of the Electric Light Works may make from time to time rules and regulations, not in conflict with this Ordinance, governing electric service, subject to the approval of the Board of Trustees, and all consumers shall observe the same to the same extent as though set forth in this Ordinance.

Sec. 9. The City Treasurer shall keep all moneys paid into the Treasury from the electric rates in a separate fund, to be known as the "Electric Light Fund."

Sec. 10. Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than Three nor more than Fifty Dollars, or shall be imprisoned in the County Jail of the County of Los Angeles not exceeding twenty-five days, or shall suffer both such fine and imprisonment.

Sec. 11. The City Clerk shall certify to the passage of this Ordinance and shall cause the same to be published once in the GLENDALE NEWS, and thereupon and thereafter it shall take effect and be in full force.

IN POLICE CIRCLES.

Constable Catlin called at the NEWS office on Wednesday. He reports considerable doing in his line of business. He went up to Crescenta on Tuesday and arrested a Mexican giving the name of P. Molino near the Briggs ranch where he was at work, on the charge of burglarizing a house about a month ago belonging to a Mr. Fenton in that neighborhood. A razor and one or two articles found upon the person of the arrested man and his wife were identified as a part of the stolen property, but the prisoner claimed that he had bought them from another man.

On the 23d of November Mr. Catlin received a card from the sheriff of Tulare county giving notice of a horse having been stolen at Tagus station on the night of the 21st and giving a description of the animal. On the night of the 25th the thief rode the stolen animal into Burbank and encountered the constable upon his arrival. The constable identified the horse which had been ridden some 300 miles in five days and was badly used up, and took the rider into custody. The prisoner gave at different times several names, among others those of John Walker and Harry Little. The constable took him to Los Angeles and when sweated by Sheriff Hammel he confessed to the theft.

OPEN-AIR SCHOOLS.

Of late years the attention of teachers and doctors has been directed to open-air schools in which children can pursue their studies and at the same time enjoy the fresh air and health-giving sunshine from which children are usually unfortunately debarred during school hours. There are several of these open-air schools in Europe and two in America. Glendale may congratulate itself on the fact that the first open-air school to be established in Southern California has been located within its precincts. Mrs. Nanno Woods, who takes a keen interest in all progressive ideas, has built as an addition to her new home in Milford street an open-air class room. Here her happy kindergarten and primary pupils may be seen daily at their work and play surrounded by environments that conduce in a wonderful degree to their physical and mental development. That school children of all ages need plenty of fresh air and sunshine is conceded alike by literary and medical men, and many educationists are urging the adoption of open-air classrooms in the public schools of the United States.

Mrs. John Parker first rendered a piano solo, displaying her great talent and touch, which never fail to please. Then Mrs. Albert Collins gave a report of the District Federation Convention, held in Pasadena two weeks ago, which brought fresh impetus to all the club members, for the enthusiasm of the convention was detected in every word of the delegate. Mrs. Morris Cook then gave a vocal solo entitled "A Dream," followed by a reading by Miss Susanne Dean of Los Angeles, and also one by Miss Litta Belle Kibben. The article written by Mrs. McLean on "The Passing of the Budget" in England, put the subject very clearly before the minds of all. Also the reading of articles by Mrs. Stevenson on an automatic street car system that is being tried that claims to be accident proof. And an article by Mrs. Bullis on the Suffragette movement, in which she told the story of the newsboy who said the difference between suffragists and suffragettes was that suffragists jist wanted the vote but the suffragettes were those who gets it. After a very dainty repast Miss Dean again favored the members with a reading entitled "A Tired Girl," in which the figures of speech were so striking and the thoughts so true that it made a powerful cutting, especially enjoyable, given in the shaded lights of the candelabra and the glow of the open fire.

At each session a short talk will be given by the pastor.

A meeting of the Sunday school workers was held in the church last Wednesday evening to make the preliminary arrangements for the Christmas exercises to be given by the school.

Bazaar by Tropico Ladies.

The Ladies' Aid of the local Presbyterian church gave a bazaar in Logan's hall yesterday and last night. The affair was the annual event given by these ladies and proved to be well attended and successful. Booths were erected along either side of the hall and from behind these some of the most popular ladies in Tropico handed out beautiful and useful articles, at the same time gathering in the nickles and dimes for the church. At 6 o'clock in the evening a supper was served, this being in charge of Mrs. W. H. Bullis, and it was well up to the high standard previously set by the members of this society.

The committees of the various booths were as follows: Five and ten-cent counter, Mrs. A. O. Conrad, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Frank Ballentyne; candy, Mrs. W. A. Hough, chairman, assisted by Miss Harriet Myers; fancy work, Mrs. A. W. Collins, chairman, assisted by Mrs. J. H. Logan, Miss Adams and Mrs. F. C. Richardson; apron and sunbonnet booth, Mrs. Brown, chairman, assisted by Mrs. H. C. Shoemaker; doll section, Mrs. E. J. Morgan, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Andy Stevenson; fishpond, Mrs. J. H. Webster, chairman, assisted by Mrs. J. W. Parker. Assisting Mrs. Bullis with the supper were Mrs. Jinnison, Mrs. Anna Cole, Mrs. George Friedgen, Mrs. John Hobbs, Mrs. Burt Richardson and Mrs. Botts.

The success of the bazaar was due to a great extent to the untiring efforts of Mrs. H. H. Davenport, who had complete charge of the affair.
